Green Procurement – NERC is an Expert

With the growing concern over employee health and safety and the increased availability of ‘green’ products and services, environmentally preferable purchasing has become mainstream. This change may create an expectation that purchasers will understand and know how to identify green products and services. For public and private purchasers, this can be a daunting task.

NERC staff is one of the national leaders in green procurement. Among the services that NERC offers to public and private purchasers to support green procurement are:

- Facilitating the process of identifying environmentally preferable product (EPP) and service priorities
- Identifying EPP specifications for products and services
- Researching the availability of products and services
- Developing purchasing specifications and RFPs
